

Herald Citizen

Vision emerges for Cain Center

By jdeem@lakenormanpublications.com on May 19, 2020

A rendering shows the planned design of the Cain Center for the Arts entrance. Images courtesy of Cain Center for the Arts

CORNELIUS – The Cain Center for the Arts unveiled renderings of its final designs for the planned venue’s lobby and outdoor campus May 19. The release is part of a series of virtual events that will continue through early June, the center said. The regional arts facility is being funded by $4 million in bonds to redevelop the arts district in historic downtown Cornelius and a private fundraising campaign that has raised nearly $16 million of its $25 million goal. For more information about the Cain Center, visit cainarts.org.

A look at the center's planned lobby.

An exterior view from Catawba Avenue.

A rendering of the exterior of the Cain Center for the Arts at dusk.

An aerial view shows the overall exterior design.